7. List the dates you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses or terminations of membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse or termination of membership.

Iowa 1985 (on inactive status from approximately 1993-2014).

Nebraska 1987 (currently on inactive status).

Indiana 1999 (lapsed approximately 2009; reinstated 2014) - I allowed my license to lapse.

- 8. Describe the general character of your legal experience, dividing it into periods with dates if its character has changed over the years, including:
 - a. A description of your typical clients and the areas of the law in which you have focused, including the approximate percentage of time spent in each area of practice.

1985-1987: Judicial Clerk - U.S. District Court.

In the first year of my judicial clerkship, I was assigned to the criminal docket, prisoner rights (Section 1983) cases, post-conviction relief cases, and habeas corpus cases. In the second year, I was assigned to the civil docket. The primary tasks throughout the clerkship were researching various legal issues, preparing memorandum for the judge, and preparing drafts of opinions for the judge.

1987-1990: Associate attorney with primary practice in insurance defense litigation.

Associate attorney in approximately 40-person law firm with primary area of practice in insurance defense litigation focusing on medical malpractice and automobile insurance defense. I was primary counsel in one jury trial and a handful of trials before judges. I did a considerable amount of writing including memos, pleadings, briefs, and motions. I conducted quite a bit of written discovery and depositions. About 25% of my work could be attributed to arguing motions, appearing at hearings, and trying cases. The remaining 75% was devoted to writing, litigation preparation and support, and miscellaneous matters.

1990-1993: Part-time practice as an associate in two small law firms in rural Iowa.

I worked part-time in two solo general practices in Eldora, Iowa. Among other things, I represented children in CINA matters, wrote wills, represented clients in business transactions, drafted contracts, represented clients in a few criminal matters, reviewed abstracts and drafted title opinions, assisted in probate matters, facilitated real estate transactions, and represented clients in dissolutions. Approximately 15% of my practice involved court appearances and approximately 50% involved drafting documents along with litigation preparation and support. The remainder of my work was distributed among the many matters a general practice entails.

1999-2001: Part-time practice in a small firm in mid-sized town in Indiana.

I worked part-time for a small firm with two partners, one full-time associate, and two part-time associates including myself. The partners leaned heavily on me for writing and litigation support. I recall second-chairing a trial and writing a few appellate briefs during my time at the firm. I wrote many pleadings, briefs, motions, contracts, and so forth. I was also involved in business transactions and other matters. During this time, I began to develop a social security disability practice and most of my appearances during that time would have been before the administrative agency. I would estimate court and administrative appearances to be 10% of the practice, with the remaining 90% devoted to writing, litigation preparation, social security disability, business transactions, and miscellaneous matters.

2001-2003: Self-employed private practice.

When the small practice I had been working for dissolved, I became a self-employed private practitioner. During this time, I continued my social security disability practice, drafted wills, drafted transactional documents, and provided general legal advice. In addition to serving my own clients, I contracted with other firms to provide research and writing. I contracted with a firm to prepare their discrimination cases – drafting and answering discovery, taking depositions, and preparing dispositive motions. I would characterize my practice as approximately 5% involving matters before courts and the remaining devoted to the items listed above.

2003-2014: Professor at Drake University Law School and Visiting Professor at other law schools.

At Drake University Law School, I taught a Legal Writing course in the fall that focused on teaching first-year law students how to evaluate rules of law and cases and how to draft an objective, legal memorandum moving from single-case analysis to multiple-case analysis. As a part of the fall curriculum, my colleague and I provided an interactive one-class overview training students to implement professionalism into email communications.

During the spring semester, I taught Appellate Advocacy. Eighty percent of class time was devoted to teaching students to write appellate briefs, which included, among other things, instruction on distinguishing between rule selection and factual application issues; the types of legal arguments used by lawyers and techniques for drafting those arguments; appellate court rules; large-scale and small-scale structure of an appellate brief; writing persuasively; writing a summary of the argument section; drafting persuasive point headings; understanding the standards of review; and writing the standard of review section. During my eleven years teaching Appellate Advocacy, I estimate that I reviewed and evaluated no less than 250 appellate briefs. The spring semester also included units on contract drafting, drafting pleadings, and drafting letters.

In 2005, I created a contract drafting course. Among other things, this course involved teaching students the various contract components, the linguistic tools used in drafting the contract components, how to translate a business deal into a contract, and understanding and effectively using boilerplate. The course was a summer course that I taught twice each summer from 2005 through 2014.

Beginning in 2005, I began teaching Introduction to Legal Writing during Drake's summer start program. The course provided a broad and condensed overview of legal analysis and writing.

In the summer of 2011, I taught an International Contracts course as part of Drake's Summer in France program. The course was a comparative study of United States contract drafting concepts and European contract drafting concepts.

During the summers of 2013 and 2014, I taught as a visiting Professor at UNLV, William S. Boyd School of Law. Each summer, I taught two courses – transactional drafting and judicial opinion writing. The transactional drafting course was similar to the contract drafting course I taught at Drake. The judicial opinion writing course focused on preparing students who wanted to become judicial clerks following graduation. I taught the students how to write both district court and appellate court opinions.

In the fall of 2014, I taught Legal Research and Writing as a visiting professor at Stetson University School of Law. The course was similar to the Drake Legal Writing course with the exception that I also taught research methodology and technique.

2015- present: Assistant Attorney General representing the Department of Human Services, Iowa Medicaid Enterprise.

For the past four years, I have worked as an Assistant Attorney General representing the Iowa Medicaid Enterprise, a division of the Iowa Department of Human Services. My primary assigned area is program integrity and health care fraud. All of my work involves compliance with and interpretation of the complex federal Medicaid statutory and regulatory framework. My work includes representing the Department in administrative appeals, judicial reviews, and the occasional appeal from judicial review. Administrative appeals include health care provider appeals from adverse program integrity actions, such as the imposition of a sanction on a provider or recovering Medicaid payments incorrectly paid to Medicaid providers. Administrative appeals may also include vendor appeals. I do a fair amount of contract review and drafting. I have taken an active role in training Medicaid staff and contractors on administrative appeals. I work with the Program Integrity team in its oversight and collaboration with the Specials Investigations Units of the Managed Care Organizations and in the PI Unit's collaboration with criminal law enforcement authorities and the U.S. Attorney's office. I work with agency folks drafting rules and ensuring compliance. I spend a considerable amount of time advising the agency on day-to-day matters. I would assess my in-court time (including appearances before Administrative Law Judges) at approximately 25%, my time writing memos, briefs and pleadings, and conducting discovery at approximately 30%, and the remainder devoted to the other described activities.

b. The approximate percentage of your practice that has been in areas other than appearance before courts or other tribunals and a description of the nature of that practice.

Excluding my time teaching, the overall percentage of my time spent in areas other than appearing before courts and tribunals is approximately 85%. For a description of those matters, see (a) above.

c. The approximate percentage of your practice that involved litigation in court or other tribunals.

Excluding my time teaching, overall percentage of my time spent involved in litigation in court and other tribunals is approximately 15%.

d. The approximate percentage of your litigation that was: Administrative, Civil, and Criminal.

Administrative litigation -75%. Civil litigation -25%. Criminal - negligible.

e. The approximate number of cases or contested matters you tried (rather than settled) in the last 10 years, indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel, and whether the matter was tried to a jury or directly to the court or other tribunal. If desired, you may also provide separate data for experience beyond the last 10 years.

In the last four years, I have tried seven administrative appeals before administrative law judges as sole counsel:

- Elder v. Iowa DHS, MED 19007991 (Disenrollment); In-person hearing; ALJ Thomas Augustine.
- Den Hartog v. Iowa DHS, MED 19005160 (Overpayment recovery insufficient documentation of medical necessity); In-person hearing; ALJ Joseph D. Ferrentino.

- Shenouda v. Iowa DHS, MED 17008663 (Recovery of Electronic Health Records payment); Telephone hearing; ALJ David Lindgren.

The foregoing do not include administrative appeals resolved through motion, settlement, or voluntary dismissal.

- 2. In approximately 2017, a significant issue that I handled as attorney for the Iowa Medicaid Enterprise involved Alan Israel, the primary owner of two nursing facilities, Lexington Square and Dave's Place. The federal Office of Inspector General excluded Israel from participation in all federal health care programs (including Medicaid) for a period of two years under a permissive exclusion based on his conviction (resulting from a guilty plea) of three counts of conversion of less than $1000 in government funds under 18 U.S.C. Section 64, a misdemeanor offense. The conviction and OIG exclusion were not related to patient care or Medicaid funds.

Dave's Place is a nursing facility that serves mentally ill patients. Lexington Square is a nursing facility that serves some of Iowa's most vulnerable and difficult to serve patients, including patients requiring ventilator services.

Because of Israel's personal exclusion, the Centers for Medicaid and Medicare Services revoked the billing privileges of Lexington Square, which would have required Iowa Medicaid to disenroll that facility and relocate the patients. The options for placement of the patients were not good.

In addition, the two facilities and the owner had previously entered into a settlement with Iowa Medicaid to repay a large overpayment.

I worked with the attorneys for the excluded individual and the CMS attorneys to find a solution. CMS agreed to reverse the revocation if Israel transferred and assigned all of his interests into an irrevocable trust. I worked with the attorneys for Israel to create a trust acceptable to Iowa Medicaid. Concurrently with the creation of the irrevocable trust, I drafted a global settlement agreement incorporating the terms of the irrevocable trust, continuing the payback of Iowa Medicaid monies, and further excluding the individual from participation in the Medicaid entities. The solution allowed Iowa Medicaid to protect its interests and to preserve services for a very needy population.

- 4. As a sole practitioner representing social security disability clients, I represented several women aged in their mid-50s who had no formal education beyond high school. These women had achieved a certain amount of success in their fields, but had not achieved a great deal of financial security. I thought of them as "pull yourself up by your own bootstraps" folks. Each became disabled and unable to work. I cannot recall the specifics of these cases and likely there was no attorney on the other side. However, these cases were significant to me because each was an opportunity to help these women navigate complex legal issues and obtain benefits to which they were entitled.
- 5. One of my first cases as a young lawyer involved a wrongful death lawsuit against my client. My client was traveling to work in his car early one morning while it was still dark. Some workers were working on street repairs, but there was insufficient lighting or signage to give my client notice of the workers. My client hit one of the workers and the worker died. I was able to obtain a decision in my client's favor on a summary judgment motion. If my client had been found liable, he had sufficient insurance to cover the liability. However, the decision in his favor gave him great personal comfort and that is why it is a significant case for me. I do not recall or have access to any of the specifics of that case.

13. Describe how your non-litigation legal experience, if any, would enhance your ability to serve as a judge.

My non-litigation experience can be classified into four categories, all of which would enhance my ability to serve as a justice on the Iowa Supreme Court: (1) teaching experience providing expertise in judicial opinion writing and appellate practice; (2) public service experience representing a highly regulated client; (3) transactional experience; (4) general practice experience.

(2) Teaching experience providing expertise in judicial opinion writing and appellate practice.

My teaching experience has uniquely qualified me to serve on the Iowa Supreme Court in two ways. First, it has provided me with proficiency in judicial writing. For two summers, I taught a judicial opinion writing course at the University of Las Vegas, William S. Boyd School of Law. In the course, I taught students how to write appellate court opinions. To teach the students, I reviewed many appellate decisions from the Unites States Supreme Court, the state supreme courts, and other appellate courts. From that review and in consultation with teaching resources, I provided my students with a framework for writing judicial opinions and marshalled them through the process of writing the opinions. Teaching judicial opinion writing was a unique opportunity to practice and refine the skills needed to serve on the Iowa Supreme Court.

Second, my teaching experience has given me a singular insight into the appellate process. In my eleven years of teaching law students, I spent the bulk of the Spring semester teaching students how to write appellate briefs, which included, among other things, instruction on distinguishing between rule selection and factual application issues; the types of legal arguments used by lawyers and techniques for drafting those arguments; appellate court rules; large-scale and small-scale structure of an appellate brief; writing persuasively; writing a summary of the argument section; drafting persuasive point headings; understanding the standards of review; and writing the standard of review section. During my eleven years, I estimate that I reviewed and evaluated in excess of 250 appellate briefs. Interestingly, a number of the focal areas of writing appellate briefs are parallel to the focal areas of writing judicial opinions. My experience has given me a unique expertise in appellate work.

(2) Public service experience representing a highly regulated client.

My experience representing a highly regulated client in a public service position will enhance my performance as a judge in two ways. First, working with complex statutes, rules, and regulations has helped me become more adept at statutory and regulatory construction, as well as giving me a deeper understanding of the role of statutory construction in judicial decisions.

Second, I am often called upon to make hard decisions or advise my client to make hard decisions because the law requires it, even though those decisions may not be favorably received.

(3) Transactional experience.

Through both practice and teaching transactional drafting, I have a deep grasp of transactional law. Business transactions and transactional writing were a part of my general practice and, in that practice, I gained a certain acumen in transactional law. However, in creating a course on transactional drafting and negotiation, I gained even greater insight into transactional practice. I understand the mechanics of transactional drafting and transactional negotiation. I also understand the differences between how the mechanics of litigation documents and litigation negotiation and strategy differ from the mechanics of transactional documents, transactional negotiation, and transactional strategy. Understanding those differences and the mechanics of transactional documents has provided me with an enhanced expertise with respect to transactional issues.

(4) General practice experience.

My general practice experience in small and mid-sized towns taught me to tackle and solve any legal problem that happened to walk in the door of that practice. As a general practice attorney, I quickly learned how to adapt my approach, my research, and my resources to solve the particular issue before me. My background in general practice will enhance my ability to serve similarly as a justice — solving a broad variety of problems and adapting to varying legal issues.

27. Explain why you are seeking this judicial position.

My primary purpose in applying for this position is to allow me to spend the last chapter of my career in service to "doing good." That is, serving the public by contributing to the integrity of our state's justice system.

Second, I would be a good justice. I have an objective mindset, exceptional analytical and writing skills, and a broad-based legal background that would serve me well as a justice on the Iowa Supreme Court. When I encounter a legal issue, I do not take one side or another. Rather, I analyze the issue and evaluate the success of the potential solutions. Along with an objective mindset, I have excellent analytical and writing skills necessary to communicate an objective analysis not only to lawyers and judges, but also to the public. Finally, my wide-ranging legal background has given me insight into a plethora of issues in varied settings ranging from judicial chambers, to a forty-person law firm, to small practices, and to government practice.

Third, this position would bring together those aspects of practicing and teaching for which I have a passion – public service, tackling manifold issues, collaborating with colleagues, and legal analysis and writing.

Finally, my appointment would encourage young women to be confident that their dedication to their life's work, even as that work may change over time, will lay a solid foundation for service.

28. Explain how your appointment would enhance the court.

I would bring the same enthusiastic and focused dedication to the work of the Iowa Supreme Court that I have brought to all of my life's work. While my work has changed from one chapter of my life to the next, I have always dedicated myself to the work at hand, striving to bring excellence to each task that I undertake. My enthusiastic dedication and strong work ethic would allow me to seamlessly join the other justices in the work of the court.

I have an objective temperament paired with disciplined analytical skills and an excellent writing proficiency that would enhance my contribution to the court. My temperate pushes me to objectively assess a case based on the facts and to set aside subjective assessments based on inclination, identification with a party, or assumptions about the facts and the law. My discipline in analyzing a case allows me to approach legal issues following a consistent analytical hierarchy. My proficiency in legal writing allows me to efficiently communicate my objective analysis so that judges, lawyers, and regular citizens can understand that analysis.

My unique and proven track record of being a team player would enhance the workings of the Iowa Supreme Court. Like other lawyers, I've collaborated on cases. However, as a teacher, I collaborated on a daily basis. I worked, listened, and refined with my colleagues in the trenches to create the best techniques and material to teach our students. Beyond that, I collaborated with a colleague on a book, matching our writing so we could create a seamless flow from one chapter to the next, editing for each another, discussing and yielding where necessary, and pushing a point where necessary. In my Medicaid work, I am in constant collaboration with the folks on the ground at Medicaid. We work together to solve problems, ensure compliance, and create processes to avoid problems. My effective and collegial collaborative skills would strengthen the court's collaboration.

Further, my professional and personal background has a breadth that would enhance the court. Professionally, I have encountered diverse issues in a number of settings, ranging from judicial chambers, to a forty-person law firm, to small practices, and to government practice. I grew up in the suburbs of St. Louis and have lived and worked in cities, mid-sized towns, and rural communities. I have been a full-time lawyer, a part-time lawyer, and a full-time mom. I have worked with folks who are conservative, liberal, and somewhere in-between. The breadth of my professional and personal experiences has given me a broad perspective that would be beneficial to the court.

29. Provide any additional information that you believe the Commission or the Governor should know in considering your application.

My application for this position on the Iowa Supreme Court is built on the legacy of the many strong women in my life. They laid a foundation, built on four cornerstones, that has enabled me to step forward. First, devotion to the work at hand, regardless of what that work may be. In other words, a focused and unforgiving work ethic. Second, dedication to making considered choices. A discipline of study, mindful consideration, and analysis. Third, leadership in finding solutions and bringing folks together in the process. Finally, a deep respect for each and every person. I would be honored to build on that foundation by serving on the Iowa Supreme Court.
